(3) Mr. Luis Murray. Dear-sir: Referring to-our Sales Manager's call upon you last Friday, we-are extremely sorry to say we-are-unable to supply a piece of silk of the design you wish. If-you-will allow us to say-so, it-is thoroughly out-of fashion now, and it-is highly unlikely to-sell. We-enclose you small sample of a new silk of very similar appearance, which wears long, and-as, we-think, far more likely to-please your lady customers. We hope to know your decision to-take this. We also enclose a copy of-our new book of summer styles in ladies fancy blouses. Yours faithfully, Sunshine silk mills.

(4) A teacher in a class room feels, he-is-the monarch for-his period and-his expressions are final. But experience has shown otherwise and very often he feels more like an unnecessary trespasser forcing his way into enemy territory. In-these days of scholars unrest and teacher indifference, most young people emerging from institutions of higher education are in-the wrong impression of-their higherfamiliarity in their subject. They never realise, a higher degree with research backing is insufficient strength to-face number of young scholars and more especially to persuade them as a teacher he-has something useful to express to-them.
